

HOWL AT THE MOON

Howl-atm NEWS

Gem & Crystal Properties

December 16, 2005

This Weeks Feature

Celestite
Spiritual Healing...

Greetings!

I hope you are well and thank you for letting me visit on your screen again. This weeks selection seemed appropriate for the time of year as it works well for compassion, healing, and a strengthened connection to the Goddess. It's soothing blue color calms us as we look forward to the lengthening of days soon to arrive. I send Yule Blessings to all who will celebrate the return of the light this coming week.

Connect to Spirit Guides

Zodiac Affinity

Celestite has an affinity with those whose sign is Gemini. Its Energy is Receptive, its Planets are Venus and Neptune, and its Element is Water. It is very beneficial to musicians, artists and those whose jobs require creativity.

Folklore

Some records indicate that Celestite was given its powers by angels to raise consciousness, and to bring guidance from them. Some believe that Celestite is inhabited by a fairy of good fortune. It is said to promote compassion for the earth and our fellow creatures and has long been used for a connection to animal and spirit guides.

Application

Celestite is best used to meditate with and aids in manifesting the element of water and our ability to flow with life. Ideally, place in the bedroom, or meditation space as an environmental cleanser. A soft stone (both physically and metaphysically), its vibrations radiate in all directions.

I hope you have found some of this information helpful on your life path. Until next week...

Blessings from Gemstoner

• Celestite

Celestite has an Orthorhombic crystal system and is in the mineral class of Sulfates. Its coloring is generally pale blue to deep and splotchy blue, but it can be white, colorless, a redbrown or orange. It is usually found in sedimentary rocks. It is mainly found in cavities in sandstone or limestone and it can be associated with fluorite, calcite, gypsum, dolomite, galena or sphalerite, where its coloring is generally blue. The blue is attributed to the presence of minute amounts of gold. In varieties from China, a deep, persistent blue is achieved from irradiation.

White, elongated crystals had been abundant in Sicilian sulfur mines, and large, white blades are found in England at Yate, Gloucestershire. There are many places in the US that it can be found in its blue color, but a colorless variety is found in the Death Valley area, and an orange variety occurs near Colorado Springs. Right now, some of the best is coming from the Bombetoka Bay area in Madagascar.

Spiritually...

Celestite allows us to recall and acknowledge our spirituality and the gifts of the divine. It may be used to balance and stabilize outward forces with our own energy fields, and in this way clears and perfects the chakras. A stone for astral travel, it provides the freedom to access specific sites and aids us in surrendering to the inner peace required to do so. It is also good for aiding in dream recall.

Emotionally...

Celestite promotes a pleasant disposition and can provide us with good communication skills. It provides a cleansing of areas of affectation by transforming pain and chaos into light & love.

Mentally...

Celestite brings us hope in times of despair by providing calmness and harmony to our life and the dismissal of worry. It aids those in pursuit of music and the production of the fine arts of watercolor, jewelry making and design.

Physically...

Celestite has been used in the treatment for disorders of the eyes, to increase the range of hearing and to balance mental dysfunctions. It provides balance in the cellular structure and facilitates the elimination of the toxins of negativity and destruction, and may be used for treating a dysfunctional intestinal system.

Corresponding Chakra...

Fifth or Throat Chakra: Color of blue. Heals the aura, astral body and light body and aligns them. Fosters a connection and ability to work with Goddesses, spirit guides, angels, nature divas and ascended beings. Advances channeling, brings information and light for core soul healing, psychic development, spiritual and karmic growth. Evokes peace.

• Spiritual Healing...

...is not medicine but assists you on your path to better health and wellbeing. The information that has been provided is not medical in nature and should not replace any medical treatment. Consult your doctor or other health care practitioners regarding health issues.

© Gemstoner & Howl-atm News 2005